TOG

Tintangel House, 92 Albert Embankment, Vauxhall, SE1 7TP

Location

Sitting right on the river front, the rooftop on the 13th floor has some spectacular views across Central London.

Tintangel House used to be occupied by the Metropolitan Police. In fact, it was the site of the first police computer. Directly opposite MI6.

But that was then. Now, Tintangel House is TOG's biggest building to date.

Description

Tintangel House used to be occupied by the Metropolitan Police. In fact, it was the site of the first police computer. The building sits right on the river front, and the rooftop on the 12th floor has some spectacular views across Central London.

Working with Stanton Williams Architects and Universal Design Studio we have refurbished the twelve-storey, 1960s building, and constructed a two-level extension on the bottom to create 120,000 sqft of flexible offices, meeting rooms, event space, lounge space and co-working space. To put it in perspective, that's big. The building comes complete with stunning river views, a Members' bar for relaxing, gym for working out, rooftop for Summer parties and an apartment for resting after too much play.
