Walk on the wild side with this building in Islington

Location

The entrance is on Upper St with probably the broadest selection of restaurants and eateries that you'll find in London. And of course the tube is on the doorstep & couldn't be closer.

Description

Shed architects took a walk on the wild side with this building in Islington, introducing the Memphis movement as an inspiration for the design of the space. Angel is a softer, subtler version of the Memphis design style, but still lots of fun.

If you don't know about the Memphis movement it was started in Milan in the very early 1980's and is about '...bright colours, bold forms and simplistic shapes'.

The building offers a range of office spaces in the heart of London, including individual offices, large co-working and drop-in spaces and a range of meeting rooms, conference rooms and event spaces.
